Queer People

There are some fellows in this land whose doings I can't understand. The chaps who sit 'round playing cards when spring is playing the lilt, when sun-shine fills the whole outdoors, except when the rain, refreshing, pours when there are sights and sounds, and scents which fascinate all normal gents; how can men sit in folly's name, and play a stupid, dreary game? They're sitting in a misty room, enshrouded in six kinds of gloom, and as they shuffle, cut and deal, the robins raise their gladness spiel, the humming birds come forth and hum, and Nature says to mankind, "Come, enjoy the beauties of the spring, and hear the tenor thrushes sing, enjoy the catbird's mellow tune, which doesn't cost a penny, the world just now is sweet and clean, with skies of blue and fields of green, so come, enjoy it while ye may; the springtime soon will pass away." And still those fellows are on guard, and still they ply the greasy card, the air around them dense with smoke, until a crocodile would choke. Same, healthy men are hoeing beans, or picking chinchings from their greens, or planting bushes in their yards—but these queer guys are playing cards.

SUNDAY "HIKERS" PUT OUT A FOREST FIRE

More Than Two Hundred Wanderers Go on Ramble Along the Potomac.

Two hundred and ten wanderers went on the weekly community hike yesterday afternoon, the leaders being C. M. Stearns, Walter W. Paige and G. A. Gamba. Following is the "official" account:
"The first part of the walk led along the Potomac river, past Spouts run as far as Windy river. The river, at all times a drawing card, looked its best, dotted here and there with canoes in their fresh white paint and their occupants in color; old Georgetown and Annapolis ledges loomed up in the clear atmosphere, and the campers along the river just beginning to assemble in their tents preparatory for the hot summer. At Windy river some climbed the stairway and some made the ascent up the steep trail. At the top every one was given an opportunity to have a good rest. Pretty woodland paths, along by the sailing hook, and crossing it at intervals, was the order of the stroll to Cherrydale. A home-like bungalow, nearly completed, was of interest as a landmark, especially so because it represented the work of one man and a sixteen-year-old boy at odd times.

Put Out Forest Fire.

"About a mile from Cherrydale a halt was called and the men of the party called out to fight a small forest fire which had caught by some means shortly before the hike. The fire was small and assumed sufficient headway to be serious. Several fire-stained sticks were carried hereafter as souvenirs. The wanderers love the walk, and the men of the party were glad to see such unnecessary destruction.
"At the Cherrydale cross-roads nearly half the crowd turned back, the rest going around by the Y. W. C. A. country home, the Country Golf Club grounds, through another section of woods, and into the road to Chain bridge. Some twenty or more became wanderers, some taking a more traditional walking. Though their walk was longer, they say it was very interesting.

Out Early With Birds.

"A small morning party, out with the birds, followed John Boyle, Jr., along the Military road and by Rock Creek via Miller's cabin. The birds observed were the magnolia warbler, black and white warbler, Canadian warbler, indigo bunting, black throat green warbler, crested fly catcher, Acadia fly catcher, Baltimore oriole, scarlet tanager and redstart. Mr. Boyle will lead the bird party again next Sunday, starting from District line and Georgia avenue between 7 and 7:30 a. m.
"Next Sunday afternoon's walk is to start from the District line and Georgia avenue at 2:45, following along Sligo branch and back to Takoma Park. John O. Lewis will lead."

Preaches on "David and Jonathan."

"David and Jonathan" was the subject of a sermon by Rev. Dr. J. T. Kelly, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, last night in the Sunday school series of lessons. The subject was discussed the previous Sunday by Howard A. Banks, secretary to the Secretary of the Navy.

WEARS WHITE FLOWER IN HONOR OF MOTHER

President Wilson Participates in Payment of Tribute to American Womanhood.

Anniversary Generally Observed by the People of Washington. Churches Take Part.

Mother's day was observed by the people of Washington yesterday in a manner befitting the honor which they paid to the beautiful spring day. High and low, from President Wilson, who attended services yesterday morning at the Central Presbyterian Church, wearing a white carnation in the lapel of his coat, to the many unnamed citizens who wore the white flower, all combined to pay tribute.

Although it seems this year that some distinction was attempted as to the color of the carnation which should be worn, a pink one in honor of a mother and a white one in memory, most of the citizens of Washington wore the white carnation indiscriminately.

Joint Observance.

Joint observance of Mother's day by the Young Women's Christian Association and the Young Men's Christian Association was held yesterday afternoon at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Rev. W. R. Wedderburn of Poultry M. E. Church, W. W. Warwick, vice president of the Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. William Hamilton Bailey, president of the Y. W. C. A., were among those who spoke.

At the crowd turned back, the rest going around by the Y. W. C. A. country home, the Country Golf Club grounds, through another section of woods, and into the road to Chain bridge. Some twenty or more became wanderers, some taking a more traditional walking. Though their walk was longer, they say it was very interesting.

Minister's Tribute.

Rev. James Shera Montgomery, in his morning sermon at the Metropolitan Memorial M. E. Church, said:
"With us grown folks, today, the sense of duty is backward. The light of memory falls with a sweet, tender pathos upon the road of the years. It has come as a winding pathway. Its devious track stretches through the valley, over dale and hill, across smiling plains and painful wastes. On this day we carry a moment at this road, pause to think, meditate and pray, with grateful hearts, at the holy altar of mother-love. We come with an undying memorial, a benediction to those who have grown beautiful in the stress and distress of life's work and responsibility. No one is able to measure the heaven that bore their daily cross. The holy exercise of faith in God and a passion for their offspring as deep and as abiding as duty, patience, endurance and quiet suffering, have enabled them to bow at the sacrament of holy motherhood."

Mothers as Guardian Angels.

"No one can ever measure the wealth of devotion and love they poured around the hearthstone of their cottage homes. The frail back was never too bent to carry the burden; the feet were never too weary to make the errand; the breast was never too tired to nourish and to comfort, and even while the consciousness of existence was lost in sleep our mothers were our guardian angels."

Traces History of Woman Movement.

Mrs. Robert M. La Follette spoke on the woman's movement yesterday before the congregation of the People's Church in the Pythian Temple. She traced the history of the woman's movement through five generations of progress.

PROMPT ACTION SAVES CHILD FROM DROWNING

E. C. Kemper Rescues Little Agnes Thompson, Who Had Tumbled Into Potomac River.

Great excitement was caused in Potomac Park yesterday afternoon when little Agnes Thompson of 1355 D street south-west lost her balance while playing along the sea wall of the Potomac river, fell into the water, and was for a time in danger of being drowned.

The little girl was rescued as the result of prompt action by E. C. Kemper of 2815 18th street northwest. Mr. Kemper, who is executive secretary of the American Institute of Architects, saw the child as she fell into the water, and, pulling off his coat, he jumped into the river and swam to where she was struggling and brought her safely back to the sea wall.

None the Worse for Experience.

Little Agnes, who is ten years old, apparently none the worse for her experience, was hurried home by relatives who were with her, and Mr. Kemper, after giving his name to Policeman R. Stewart, on duty at the Highway bridge, also hurried home to change his clothing.

MAJ. PULLMAN AS SLEUTH.

Personally Investigates Robberies at Church of the Reformation.

Maj. Raymond W. Pullman, superintendent of police, yesterday participated in the investigation of two robberies committed at the Church of the Reformation, B street southeast, where he is superintendent of the Sunday school.

Ten days ago robbers, presumably boys, entered the church, broke open a closet and got $2 from a small bank, and it probably was because of their success on that occasion that they returned to the church Saturday night and broke open several desks. There were no valuables in the desks.

When the Sunday school superintendent of the church yesterday he was told of the second visit paid by the robbers. He took a hand in the investigation and found a clue which he hopes will lead to the arrest of the offenders.
